

MENACE OF COLOURED RACES

NEW STANDARD OF WHITE CIVILIZATION

"The white races can never afford the luxury of another war among themselves," said Dr. Colin Ross, a German travel author, addressing the Constitutional Club yesterday.

He said his travels had convinced him that since the last war the coloured races had learnt their power, and even now China and Japan were competing successfully with Europe and America in textiles and other manufactures.

The danger of coloured against white races was not only a military, but an economic one.

The white races could never compete with an educated coloured class with its lower standard of living. Australia, Argentine, California, and South Africa were the outposts of white civilization, and he found in those countries a new, and may be, a better, standard of white civilization, which might uphold the power of the white races in the world.
